

We are all of the same essence. There is no difference between you and I. No one is placed higher than another. When all else is stripped away, your name, your interests, and everything else in this life, what remains is your awareness. And since we there is only one universe we currently exist within, everything is a part of that.

Our bodies all came from the Earth, and our souls all came from the void, the space in between words, thought, and atoms. The illusion of separation was created to maintain structures of power, and is the source of all evil.

Does a wave ever stop being the ocean? It doesn't. In the same way, you are a wave crashing upon the shore, and when you are finished, you return back to the ocean, waiting to rise again. Back to the universe.

Everything in this life is borrowed. When you hurt another person, you are hurting yourself. And in the end, we will remain. Together As One.

If you believe, then spread this message like a fire. Let it consume you. Love is our weapon against hate.
